Children 0-3 years Old in Greater Western Sydney

Children aged 0-3 years are one of the groups identified by Family and Community Services (FACS) as a target group in their Targeted Early Intervention reform . Children in their first three years are among the most vulnerable members of the community being dependent upon their parents, carers or guardians for all their needs.

Non-Private Dwellings in Greater Western Sydney

Zach Lemonius, currently studying his Masters at Western Sydney University, completed his student placement at WESTIR Ltd. During his placement, he took part in learning about the different aspects of working in the Community Sector. He prepared and published a paper on Non-private Dwellings in Greater Western Sydney.

This paper looks in detail at two non-private dwellings within GWS, being nursing homes and boarding houses. It also examines how these non-private dwellings are connected to local planning legislation, relating to current policies and controls that the state government is trying to achieve within these domains.
